

Elissa used her time at home to sew masks for friends and family members. Her time at The Patch taught her to be constructive as much as possible.

Sheree fell behind in her studies because her grandparents didn't have internet access, but quickly caught up as Patch members coached her on using the Wi-Fi from a nearby restaurant to complete her assignments.

Chris managed to break out of a bad mood and get off the couch when Cabbage Patch staff delivered sports equipment to his home. He was inspired to get some exercise until he could be back at The Patch.

The children of The Patch have really been showing their superpowers while coping with the COVID-19 pandemic!

They have shown resilience and perseverance in the midst of online learning, food insecurity, racial justice
demonstrations and many other trials.

Help The Cabbage Patch face these challenges.

Together, we are a force
for progress!

$50 gets one child off the streets and into safe, structured after school programs for a month | $100 helps a child learn creative problem solving with three months of art activities | $200 helps a child avoid summer learning loss with a week of summer camp
